

Jeanne Marie Teutonico

Jeanne Marie Teutonico is Associate Director, Programs, at the Getty Conservation Institute (GCI). She is an architectural conservator with an A.B. (Hons) in Art History from Princeton University and an M.Sc. in Historic Preservation from Columbia University, Graduate School of Architecture, Planning and Preservation.

From 1983-1992, she was employed by the International Centre for the Study of the Preservation and the Restoration of Cultural Property (ICCROM) in Rome where she was instrumental in developing the laboratory curriculum for the International Architectural Conservation Course and responsible for research and technical advice concerning the analysis and conservation of building materials.

After a period as independent consultant to UNESCO in Zanzibar, Ms. Teutonico joined English Heritage in 1995 as a senior architectural conservator in the Building Conservation and Research Team. Until her departure to the GCI in September 1999, she was principally responsible for the design and management of an extensive research program dealing with building material science.

J. M. Teutonico is published widely and maintains research interests in the conservation and sustainable use of traditional building materials. She was a Resident of the American Academy in Rome in 2009, and is a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries and the Association for Preservation Technology.
